The San Francisco meeting space is strategically designed to be stylish yet comfortable. What sets the space apart even further is getting the space plus luxury concierge service.

"Spending decades working with event directors, I know how important an events or meeting space is to set the right tone for an event," says Jonathan Perfington, President and Managing Director, North America. "When we created the Landon Hotel in San Francisco, it was a priority to make sure we designed the events space in Bernal Heights to be chic, professional and intimate. Making a great space that was also affordable for smaller groups was a void that we fill successfully. Since I personally know how much work it is to plan meetings and events, we also include our luxury concierge service to all meeting room reservations to help international, national and local event planners so they make their events as successful as possible."

Event planners and meeting organizers looking to host an event in a quaint neighborhood book the events room of the modern-themed, Landon Hotel in San Francisco. The hotel has 40 rooms so out-of-town visitors can also stay at the hotel for multiple-day events. Bernal Heights is south of San Francisco's Mission District. The quiet, residential neighborhood has restaurants, stores, groceries, cafes and bars within walking distance.
